

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention describes an apparatus useful for detecting neutrons, and particularly for detecting thermal neutrons, while remaining 5 insensitive to gamma radiation. Neutrons are detected by direct measurement of current pulses produced by an interaction of the neutrons with hexagonal pyrolytic boron nitride.